RE: School Planning for Wednesday, January 27

Hello Families – To assist families with planning for tomorrow, please note below.

- There will be wet stuff coming down from the skies later tonight. It is too close to tell at this point if the wet stuff will be rain and/or snow.
- If the wet stuff is snow, it will almost assuredly be enough to close the school for Wednesday.
- With the above in mind, families and staff will be working with two plans in mind for tomorrow.
  - Plan A: If there is no cause to close the school, we will be open and operate on our regular schedule. This may include a delayed start.
  - Plan B: If there is cause to close the school, we will close but have all of our students, teachers, and staff in Distance Learning mode.
    - > Teachers have prepared and will be sending resources and/or providing instructional information to all of their students on campus. We will do our best to utilize any available van time to get resources to students that are not on campus today. However, there is no guarantee on how many students can be served by the van drop offs.
    - > Grab and Go Meals: Will not be served.
    - > Kids Club: Will not be open.
    - > If by chance there is a power outage, please do your best, and we will call it good.

In the meantime, our Snow Day Strike Team will constantly be monitoring the weather and road conditions. Updates will be provided as needed.

At this time, please default to school being open tomorrow. The decision to close school will be made and communicated no later than tomorrow at 5:40a.m.

Thank you and all the best.

Jack
